Design: Creation of Artifacts in Society

According to our text, of the same name of the course, the design process is the planning of the creation of an artifact that closes a “gap” in user experience. An artifact must be something tangible, not an idea, although it may be physical, such as an ice cream scoop, or non-physical, such as software.

Design: Creation of Artifacts in Society - Mooc

Design is conceiving and giving form to artifacts that solve problems and design fits into an overall problem solving process in which a gap is experienced. Design creates a plan for the conception and form for the artifact. And then, there is some production process that takes that plan and produces the artifact.
